

What's New, What's Next

The Wright brothers' launch into the first century of flight inspired many aviation innovations. These innovations, however, didn't happen in a vacuum. Anyone interested in "what's new, what's next" could read about it in popular monthly magazines such as these. Not all of the fantastic aircraft featured made it into production, or even off the ground, but many did. And their successes still inspire innovators, many of whom are EAAers, in this second century of flight.

—Kathleen L. Witman